Online Dakota Information Network Information

The Online Dakota Information Network (hereafter ODIN) is a North Dakota University System (hereafter NDUS) entity. ODIN is a consortium of all 11 NDUS academic libraries plus private academic libraries, public libraries, K-12 libraries, state government libraries and special libraries from across North Dakota. An ODIN website – <https://www.odin.nodak.edu> – is maintained.

NDUS through its' Core Technology Services/Enterprise Solutions division employs a Director of ODIN, who manages and administers the ODIN entity with input from an ODIN Advisory Council (hereafter OAC). ODIN purchases are subject to the 1201.1 Information Technology (IT) Requests policy and any NDUS IT procurement policies

Membership

Membership in the consortium requires that individual libraries load their bibliographic records into a shared catalog, allows consortium members to search their own collections, and agrees to participate in resource sharing activities with other consortium members.

Organization

ODIN receives a state legislative appropriation with all other expenses to be self-supporting through membership fees. Member libraries pay fees according to a cost formula endorsed by the OAC. The Director of ODIN creates an ODIN budget each year and has final decision-making authority in the assignment of all ODIN resources, including ODIN staff. The OAC may recommend financial options to fund new projects.
